

AT THE VERY moment the United States Congress was calling on the United Nations to denounce Red China as an aggressor nation there were British cheers for Prime Minister Attlee speaking these words yesterday in England's House of Commons:

"We are of the opinion that the United Nations should not at this stage take a new and important decision. We do not believe the time has come to consider further measures. To do so implies that we have abandoned hope of reaching a peaceful settlement, and this we have not done."

There you have a wide and apparently fateful split between the two branches of English-speaking people. The commentators are making much over the fact that such a split was the prime goal of Soviet Russia's diplomatic policy. But we will have to weigh the question of whether the British position was taken with regard to Russia or China.

The American people don't pay much attention to Clement Attlee, whose diplomatic experience is considerably less than his experience in doing out government funds for Labor's welfare state. But we do pay attention to what Winston Churchill says. And Churchill has been giving off ominous sounds — sounds that indicate he endorses Attlee's no-China-war policy.

The speculation is this: That there is still some question whether Russia and China are as united as we have been led to believe. There seems to be a possibility that Russia is afraid of China becoming so successful on the Asiatic continent that she will defy Moscow and steer her own course. The British hint they are playing up to this idea in dead earnest.

If it were Attlee's idea alone we wouldn't give it much thought. Churchill's endorsement, however, makes us pause.

Not, however, that Americans are any less hot against the weak-kneed United Nations for committing us to war one month and then leaving us in the lurch the next month.

The only hopeful sign your correspondent can see in this complex and undecipherable riddle is that the wider the apparent breach between Britain and the United States the greater the certainty that there will be no immediate war with Russia. Such a war is the one thing that would reunite all of us instantly.

But against that eventuality we are going ahead with defense plans in Europe — whatever the outcome of the Asian issue.

Eisenhower Finds Job Can Be Done

London, Jan. 24 — (P) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has completed his tour of Europe's Atlantic pact nations with one sure finding — the job of building a defense will be brutally hard — but possible.

This correspondent has made the same tour, covered the same nations, and has talked to some of the people Gen. Eisenhower has seen and to some he has not.

Eisenhower, pausing now in Paris before he flies tomorrow to Iceland, Canada and Washington, so far has presented to each country roughly the same proposition. He has told each one:

1. The risk of Russian aggression, either by diplomatic pressure or troops, is great. Russian aggression means the end of everything Western civilization represents.

2. America is arming, expensively and fast.

3. America will help Europe arm. What is the maximum Europe can contribute?

The answer in each case — with the possible exception of Britain — has not been enough to satisfy the man who must make western defense work.

The hard fact is that most of Western Europe doesn't want to spend money and most of it is scared.

The West Europeans don't want to spend money because, in each case, it means giving up a lot of bacon, cars and shoes they only lately have again after long years of privation during and after World War II.

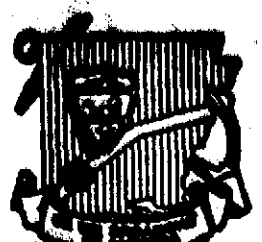

They are scared because they know war may start before the United States, Britain and France — the countries which really can

Price Rollback to January 2 Levels, Expected

Washington, Jan. 24 — (P) — Price Stabilizer Michael Disalle said today he has given Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston recommendations for a general price freeze.

He made the statement before the joint senate-house economic committee.

Disalle did not make public details of his recommendations but said that an announcement probably will be made within a couple of days.

His testimony followed word from other officials that a price rollback may be expected tomorrow, possibly to be followed by a wage freeze on Friday.

An overall price ceiling at levels of Jan. 2 was reported by informed government sources to be in the works.

The wage action, it was understood, will put a lid on wages as of the day announced.

Johnston, long time president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and later the president of the Motion Picture association, is understood to be planning a radio and television broadcast tomorrow evening, at which time he will tell the public of his plans.

He took the oath of office from Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson in a brief ceremony in President Truman's news conference room in the old state department building.

An order was due shortly from Johnston giving autonomous power over prices to price stabilization Director Michael V. Disalle and over wages to the nine-member wage stabilization board headed by Cyrus S. Ching.

Under Johnston's predecessor, Alan Valentine, who resigned Friday, Disalle enjoyed only limited authority and the wage board had received no declaration of power — it was merely an advisory body to Valentine.

Johnston has told a congressional committee he will have broad supervisory power over not only wages and prices, but also over all economic phases of mobilization including credit control, rents, home financing, and general fiscal policy.

Senator Flanders (R-Vt.) accused President Truman meanwhile of, in effect, encouraging price and wage increases.

Cabot Man May Be New Highway Commission

Little Rock, Jan. 24 — (P) — The Arkansas Gazette today said Jeff Wood, Cabot businessman, had been selected by Governor McMath for membership on the Arkansas highway commission.

The newspaper said Wood's nomination would be sent to the senate today.

He would succeed Commissioner William L. Humphries of Little Rock, who resigned.

The Governor's office announced yesterday that Joe Steel, a Springfield canner, has been appointed to the state racing commission to succeed R. D. Bogard of Prairie Grove, who resigned Jan. 15 because of ill health. The appointment is not subject to senate confirmation.

Dill Named Hope Defense Director

Lyle Brown, Mayor of Hope, announced today that he has appointed Donald H. Dill of Hope, to be Director of Civil Defense.

Dill spent the latter part of last week, at Little Rock, conferring with national officials, and State Civil Defense Director Martin on matters pertinent to the Civil Defense Program as set up by the United States and the State of Arkansas.

Dill said that able planning, with full public knowledge and participation are essential to this program, and that it's effectiveness lies in the completed plan being in a workable condition, before, any disaster strikes us, or our neighbors.

At present, the Director is busy planning and developing the program for Hope, and in organizing a Civil Defense Advisory Council composed of local citizens and businessmen.

He also said that there will be a great need for numerous volunteer workers to carry out this program, and that as soon as the basic organization is completed, a call for these volunteers will be made.

House Votes to Hold Up All Appropriations Pending a Report From Investigators

By GENE NEWSOM

Little Rock, Jan. 24 — (P) — The Arkansas house revolted today against a time-honored custom of giving immediate consideration to weighty appropriation bills.

Led by Rep. Charles Cash of Hot Spring county the chamber adopted by a vote of 85 to 0 a resolution (HRS) holding up consideration of all tax and revenue matters until welfare and investigating committees have reported.

"We want to give the members of the house a chance to study the state's needs before providing funds," Cash said. "It will be a courtesy to the pre-session legislative council and it is proper and fitting that we wait until our investigating committees deliver the facts which possibly will help us effect some economies."

Little Rock, Jan. 24 — (P) — The Arkansas revenue commissioner may be replaced as the state high authority in control of alcoholic beverages — and at the current commissioner's own request.

The temperance committee of the Arkansas house voted yesterday to sponsor a bill to place supervision of the state's $30,000,000 a year beer and liquor industry under a three-man alcoholic beverage control board.

The man who appeared before the committee to plug for such a measure was Revenue Commissioner Dean Morley, who now has extensive power over the industry. Morley told the committee that if he could have devoted my time to the study of tax problems instead of spending 90 per cent of my time listening to applicants for liquor licenses, the general revenue fund might be a half million dollars better off today.

"I have raised the number of income taxpayers 45 per cent, and if I hadn't had to deal with the liquor applicants we might have jumped this 65 per cent."

The house yesterday passed a bill (HB9) to divide revenue from sale of confiscated liquor, ninety-five per cent would go to the school fund of the county in which the liquor was seized.

Five per cent would be a reward for arresting officers. If these officers were state policemen, their share would go to the state police retirement fund. Rep. Jack Clark of Miller county was author of the bill.

Remington Denies Wife's Charges

New York, Jan. 24 — (P) — Contradicting testimony by his former wife, William W. Remington said yesterday that he wooed her by promising to be true to the "average man," but not communism.

Remington, 33, once a $10,000-a-year-government economist, was on the witness stand for the second day at his federal perjury trial.

He is expected to testify again today on charges that he lied in telling a federal grand jury he never was a Communist party member.

His statements yesterday contradicted earlier testimony by his divorced wife, Ann Moos Remington, who appeared for the government. She testified that Remington told her he was a Communist, and that she married him on condition that he remain a Communist.

But the defendant said the only promise he had given her was that he never would become so ambitious for himself as to "give up my concern about the average man." He also denied telling her he was a Communist.

The Remingtons were married in 1939, while he still was a student at Dartmouth college. They were divorced about 18 months ago.

Mr. Remington said the conversation took place in a parked car at Dartmouth, but the defendant said the locale was a downtown New York restaurant.

"We talked about whether we should marry or not," he testified. "She hadn't made up her mind. She was worried about what she thought was my ambition, and asked me if I would promise her I would not become dominated by a desire to be a successful businessman. She was quite concerned about the republicanism in my family."

"I promised her I never would become so anxious to get ahead in the world that I would give up my concern about the average man."

The defendant implied that his "bragging" at the time might have led her to think he was a Communist.

India's Nehru Rips American Policy in Asia

New Delhi, India, Jan. 24 — (P) — Prime Minister Nehru of India, in a broadcast briefing with criticism of the United States' policy in Asia, called tonight for a conference of major powers to discuss world problems instead of talking at each other across thousands of miles.

"It is clear that enough has been said on both sides for negotiation in a conference to be the next fruitful step," Nehru said.

The Indian leader contended the American proposal to name Communist China an aggressor in Korea — a policy backed by both houses of the U. S. congress — "cannot lead to peace." He said:

"It can only lead to intensification of conflicts and might perhaps close the door to any attempt at solution by negotiation. It is a tremendous responsibility for any person to take such a step."

At no time should this door be closed, for if we close it, we also close the door to a civilized approach to any problem."

Nehru's broadcast marked his return from the London meeting of prime ministers of the British commonwealth of nations. Great Britain also is opposing any plans to impose U. N. penalties against the Red Chinese aggressors.

In reference to American opposition to the sending of Red China in the United Nations, Nehru said:

"For the past year or more we persistently urged new China should be given a place in the councils of the world at Lake Success. Yet this has not been done and most people realize now that the fate of the world might well have been different if that obvious fact had been recognized."

"There has been a reluctant and hesitation to accept the great change that has come over Asia. There still is an attempt, sometimes to treat the great nations of Asia in the old way."

Changes in Asia have upset the balance of power, Nehru said, adding:

"Because the United Nations do not recognize it, the difficulties arise and continue to trouble us. Again there was the question of crossing the 38th parallel in Korea. Adequate notice and warning was given, but it was not heeded, and further complications ensued."

"Can we not say now, wiser after the event, that this is a major error which should have been avoided?"

Allies Recapture 2 Points, Win Big Air Battle

Tokyo, Jan. 24 — (P) — Allied troops slashed more than 10 miles beyond Wonsu on the central Korean front today and to the south east recaptured the key mountain town of Yongwol.

A heavily armed patrol with tanks blazed through Hoengsong, 10 miles north of Wonsu, and pushed on to within 33 miles of the 38th parallel before withdrawing, a field dispatch said.

It was the farthest northward advance by any Allied force since Wonsu, the Korean capital, was abandoned. On the way back to Wonsu, the attacking force was engaged by a company of enemy troops. The force retreated with heavy casualties.

The Han river town of Yongwol, southeast of Wonsu, fell to Allied attack after an air and artillery bombardment.

The capturing force was identified. However, the U. S. 8th Division, only American force to reach the Manchurian border in the Korean war, has been operating south of the Tumen mining town.

A. P. Norcross, correspondent Tom Smith said the attacking force crossed the ice-covered Han after an intense air and artillery barrage.

The surprised Reds fled, leaving only light opposition. In the air, swift U. S. F-84 fighters shot down a Soviet-built MIG-15 in northwest Korea. First reports had claimed an enemy jet shot down by a U. S. Air Force later revised the toll.

Between 10 and 20 MIGs flew across the Yalu river and attacked the American Thunderbolts.

American planes fought clear out damage, as they did Tuesday when the swift Thunderbolts downed three and possibly more MIGs and damaged three others.

Maj. Gen. Earl E. Patrick, Fifth Air Force commander, said 63 enemy jets have been destroyed or damaged since the Korean war last November.

U. S. air losses during the period, he said, were five.

On the ground, a band of rifle women showed seven miles south of Yongwol with a Red can force of 1,500 troops.

A tank led patrol pushed one mile of Hoengsong, 20 miles north of Wonsu, on the central front.

This is the farthest northward advance since the probing began in the central front in 1950. It is about the same distance south of the 38th parallel as the South Korean capital which the Reds Jan. 4.

An A. P. field dispatch said an enemy group of from 30 to 80 men was dispersed about four miles south of Hoengsong with arms fire. Another enemy was dispersed two miles from the town. When the enemy crossed a bridge one mile south of Wonsu, no enemy was in sight. On the western front, the Army commander reported enemy troops had been retreating the town of Yongwol, miles southeast of Seoul.

Nimitz Heads Internal Security Group

Washington, Jan. 23 — (AP) — President Truman has created a commission to report on how best to protect the nation's internal security without impairing traditional liberties.

The move drew a mild reaction from senators who have long been wary in Capitol Hill of moves over Communist spies.

Truman set up the nine-member, non-partisan commission yesterday, and named retired Admiral Chester A. Nimitz to head it. He said he would appoint other distinguished citizens.

The President announced the commission would consider "the question of how this nation can deal with the problem of protecting its internal security and at the same time maintaining the liberties of its citizens."

One of the commission's major tasks, the President said in a statement, will be to consider the question of the federal employee loyalty and security program.

There have been some 40,000 federal employees in the past. But the President said he would limit the number to 10,000.

Navy Plans to Destroy Independence

San Francisco, Jan. 23 — (AP) — The atom-bomb carrier 'Independence' is going to be blasted to Davy Jones.

The navy says this World War II hero no longer is of any value — even as an experimental laboratory for radiologists.

Only the hull remains of the 10,000-ton light carrier whose planes destroyed more than 100 Japanese aircraft and at least one ship, the Cruiser Oyodo.

The atom bomb, scientists and engineers have blasted and stripped the mighty I of every usable object.

Her flight and hangar decks and hull above the water line are holed-pocked and battered — chiefly by the 1946 atom bombing at Bikini.

Her main power plant was sent to the navy's rocket experiment project at Point Mugu, Calif.

The mighty I's death will be as explosive as her life through the war and Bikini.

Her death date and grave and means of destruction are navy top-secrets — on orders from CNO — chief of naval operations, (Adm. Forrest P. Sherman) Washington.

"We're not out for publicity," explained an officer.

But the date probably will be early to mid-February. The place: Perhaps 600 miles at sea — far enough outside San Francisco's Golden Gate to avoid snipers and outside of shipping lanes.

The method, "some weapon" place aboard, presumably on the hangar or flight deck. It will not be atomic. It has been used before. It would be identifiable readily from pictures, even long range shots, if enlarged.

Camoramen and newsmen will not be permitted to witness the sinking.

A few top navy men and scientists will from a nearby ship. They want to learn the effectiveness of the weapon, presumably a recent development.

Although she survived bikini, the Independence appeared to be damaged far worse than any other of the scores of ships there — worse than those which sank quickly or slipped under days later. Her island structure was knocked cock-eyed; her stack leveled over-side.

Her hull was battered; her hangar and flight decks buckled. Fire heavily damaged or destroyed her — decks, military equipment, placed there to test its resistance to the A-bomb. One plane was blasted over-side, others were damaged.

The Independence was very hot, radiologically. She eventually was brought to the navy shipyard at Hunters Point here. Scientists completed their detailed studies of her. Finally they decontaminated her to such a degree that one said "I'd be willing to eat all of the radiation that remains."

However, the navy says the mighty I isn't safe for scrap. The minute radiation might be concentrated in one medical instrument manufactured from her metal, and someone's life endangered.

Action of Russia Emphasizes Rearmament of Europe Is One of Many Big Issues

By DWITT MACKENZIE, AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Soviet Russia turning some of her heaviest artillery against reararmament of West Germany, thus emphasizing that this is one of the paramount issues in the Western theatre.

Moscow has sent blunt notes to both Britain and France, declaring that plans to reararm West Germany are a violation of Russia's treaty of alliance with the two Western powers.

Now that's tough talk it can be variously interpreted but it certainly means that the Soviet Union is being purposely belligerent, either to try to frighten Britain and France or to pave the way for her own denunciation of the alliance.

A projected Russian denunciation could mean that Moscow is preparing its people for the contingency of another world war. However, I don't believe we should try to read into that more than its face value.

The Western powers are mulling no words in warning their peoples that war is a possibility and should be prepared for it's natural for Russia to do the same.

The future of Western Germany — key state of central Europe — depends heavily on the desires of its own people, and it is in some doubt, although the country leans strongly towards the west.

The Germans are standing firm in their determination that they be given equality with the Allies in any reararmament program, and this is causing some anxiety among the Western European countries which have been through two world wars against the Reich.

However, the Western powers have made it clear that they have no intention of trying to force the German government to accept a reararmament program. It is agreed that reararmament must be done voluntarily and willingly.

General Eisenhower during his recent visit was emphatic in his insistence that if the Germans come in it must be of their own free will.

The general also declared that he would like to see the German people lined up with others in defense of the Western type of civilization.

There could be no higher recommendation than that, coming as it did from the Allied command-in-chief during the late war.

Also, it is not to be forgotten that during the late war Eisenhower declared that the German people were the best soldiers in the world's best soldiers.

However, he did make a statement which may be far towards seeing the future which Western Europe as a whole has for the Reich.

For our part, bygones are bygones. I feel no animosity against the German people, especially against the German people. No people in a war, only sometimes through national ignorance they are led into it.

I know Germany well and believe the average German is a peace loving individual. However, he submits to governmental regulation rather readily, and takes his orders without question. I believe the latter have been a strength of this character.

Working instead of punishing the German aggression.

On the surface, one of the great differences between Russia and America is in the way they view the question of whether or not China really wants peace or negotiation.

China continues to declare that the latest word from Peking is that it is ready to negotiate. But it is a long time since it has been so.

China on the contrary has a long record of aggression. The Chinese government has a long record of aggression. The Chinese government has a long record of aggression.

'New' Chinese Weapon Just Doesn't Work

Tokyo, Jan. 23 — (AP) — The Chinese Communist army has resurrected a colorful figure out of the military past — the grenadier.

He is not working very well, U. N. combat exaltation reports disclose. His grenades are no good. And the Chinese, lacking America's baseball training, just can't leave grenades very far away.

Chinese grenadiers do not carry rifles. Their only weapons are small potato-masher concussion grenades.

Red officers either use the grenades as a first wave or pass them through the first wave as such as possible.

When they are less than 50 yards from U. N. lines the Chinese start tossing grenades. The trouble is the weak-armed enemy has muscles trained for lifting and pulling instead of throwing.

Most of them, throwing an underhand loop, can't leave a grenade more than 20 to 25 yards. One recent battle became almost comic. The Chinese were less than 20 yards below a hilltop U. N. position. For an hour they tried to throw a grenade over the top and never did make it.

U. S. soldiers express only contempt for the Chinese grenades and grenadiers. The grenades make a lot of noise but almost never kills or seriously wounds anyone. Not being the fragmentation type, it throws only light splinters. Officers report one seven-man American group had between 50 and 60 grenades thrown into its position. The Yanks kicked about 40 out before they went off. The others exploded but while nearly every soldier was hit none was killed or even seriously wounded.

Casualties are tremendous among the Chinese grenadiers. They do not have rifles to defend themselves and have to expose their bodies to throw grenades.

In a war of fire power and modern weapons only a nation with tremendous masses of men could afford grenadiers. Not so in the military past when the grenadier was buckled through Europe's battlefields.

Back in 1649 when the Monk's regiment restored Charles II to British throne, armies had pikemen and musketeers but no grenadiers. But about 1680 Britain's army was reorganized. Three regiments were formed whose battle standards still fly. They were the goldstream, grenadier and royal horse guards.

Each guards battalion had a grenadier company. The grenadiers' job then was just what it is today. He threw the crude forerunner of today's hand grenade into the enemy ranks.

In those days of derring-do there were no machine guns or tanks.

In any event, the point is that strategically located Germany, with its manpower and the rich coal and iron resources of the Ruhr, is needed in the defensive war of the Western nations.

And of course, it's needed by Russia as well.

Moscow has been making every possible effort to win Western Germany over through Soviet occupied East Germany. However, Chancellor Adenauer of the West German government has rejected the overtures, charging that the East German government is the one of communism. He says he won't discuss matters unless East Germany guarantees a regime based on law, respect for liberty and human rights, and maintenance of peace.

So Moscow, having failed to win over West Germany through East Germany, is now putting pressure directly on Berlin and trying to win the support of the workers of the city.

Automatic weapons to cut him down. The grenadier had as good a chance of survival as the riflemen or riflemen he fought beside.

Now China's Red rulers have a page out of military history. The smiling Anglo-Saxon wearing the king's scarlet has been replaced by a shaven-headed man shivering in a padded uniform.

But the grenadier is back in action.

Flanders Says Price Increase Is Encouraged

Washington, Jan. 24 — (AP) — Senator Flanders (R-Vt.) contended today that the Truman administration in effect has been encouraging price and wage increases.

The Vermont senator expressed that opinion amid (1) new demands in congress for swift imposition of general wage-price controls and (2) a fresh indication the government may invoke price curbs alone by Friday and possibly as soon as tomorrow.

The senate-house economic committee hoped to get some definite word regarding inflation-control plans at a public hearing (10 a. m. EST) to which it summoned two key officials. They are Michael V. Disalle, price administrator, and Cyrus S. Ching, chairman of the wage stabilization board.

In another defense mobilization move, the government acted to conserve greater amounts of natural rubber. The national production authority called in rubber manufacturers today to confer with officials on drafting recommendations for saving natural rubber.

This indicated that the natural rubber content of automobile tires — now limited to 65 per cent — may be cut still further. There were signs, too, that use of the natural product may be banned entirely in some non-defense items.

Flanders, a member of the congressional committee which called on Disalle and Ching, said in advance of the hearing that the administration has condoned and encouraged wage-price increases by not moving against them in general as it did last December in the case of an announced price boost for new automobiles. The government also acted then to freeze auto industry wages at least temporarily.

Flanders told reporters a specific case of "discrimination" against the auto industry was last week's coal agreement. It provided a 20-cent an hour wage hike for 400,000 soft coal miners, effective Feb. 1.

Wire Stealing Gang Broken at Benton

Benton, Jan. 24 — (AP) — Charges were filed against 13 persons here today as police broke up what they called "one of the biggest fencing deals in the history of Saline county."

The case involves theft of more than $10,000 worth of copper wire from Western Union Telegraph company premises between Little Rock and Benton over a period of nearly a year.

Sheriff Pat Berry and other officers arrested 14 persons yesterday, and the sheriff said other arrests might be made. One had not been charged today.

Charged with grand larceny in informations prepared by Prosecutor Joe McCoy today are:

Coy Collins, Marion Baldwin, Harry and George McClelland, Royce Burrow, Cleveland Davis, Batty and Lottie Johnson, Leroy and Odell Burnett, Raymond Witham and Cleveland Davis.

A charge of receiving stolen property was filed against Dave C. Johnson. Meanwhile, a 14th person was being held in jail at Malvern awaiting the filing of charges.

Sheriff Berry said approximately 2,000 of the 37,000 pounds of wire taken from the poles had been recovered.

Officers said technique used in stealing the wire was to cut it from the poles and haul it away before the company trouble-shooters could reach the scene.

DOROTHY DIX Husband's Business

Dear Miss Dix: How much should a wife know about her husband's business? How persistent should she be in seeking this information if her husband does not seem to want her to know of his affairs? Answer: It depends upon the wife's intelligence and discretion; upon what kind business or profession her husband is engaged in, and upon her husband's attitude in the matter.

There are some women who have good business heads, sound judgment, and who know how to keep their tongues silent, whose husbands can confide to them every detail of their affairs. There are other women whose meddling in their husbands' business is always disastrous. They stir up jealousies and break up partnerships and they spoil every pie into which they put their fingers.

Can't Keep Secrets — There are other wives who are such leaky vessels that they blab everything that happens in the office. A man who has a wife who is a meddler or a talker does well to keep his business affairs secret.

If a man is a lawyer, a doctor, a preacher, or engaged in any business in which his relations with patrons are confidential, his wife has no right to know anything whatever about his business. He knows other people's secrets and he has no right to tell his wife about just what ails Mrs. X., or whether or not Mrs. B. is thinking about getting a divorce. Nothing will queer any professional man so quickly as having his wife hang about the office all the time spying and eavesdropping on what goes on there.

Also, woman's right to know about her husband's business depends very much on how much he wants to tell her. There are men who enjoy discussing every detail of their hopes and plans.

But there are still other men who want to lock their business in their desks when they quit work, and want to forget all about their problems and the things that have vexed them during the day. They find that by never discussing their business at home they come back to work the next day rested and refreshed and able to bring a clearer judgment to the decisions that they must make.

Dear Miss Dix: What is your opinion of a man who allows his 18-year-old daughter to be put out of his house by her stepmother without at least investigating to find out why she did it? The girl has always been home-loving and gentle and one who seldom went out. The stepmother has told the father that the girl left home of her own accord. Wouldn't you think he would take enough interest in his own flesh and blood to try to find out the truth in the matter?

NEIGHBOR

Answer: I certainly should, but the callous indifference of so many men toward their children after they marry a second time is one of the curious and inexplicable vagaries of human nature with which we are all familiar.

All we have heard of late is that we are married fathers who are not interested in their own children.

The American National Life Insurance Co. is the only one that pays out on a death claim within 30 days.

remarried apparently all of his affection for his children vanished into thin air. Why men do this, I do not know, unless it is because they are afraid if their new wives and would rather be unkind and unjust to their children than have a fight with their wives.

Certainly any man who lets a little 18-year-old girl be put out of his house, or even go of her own accord, without finding out what faults she has committed that justified her stepmother in putting her out, or what treatment had been accorded her that made her so unhappy at home she could not stay there any longer, is failing in his most sacred obligation, which is to guide and care for the child he brought into the world.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a girl of 19. Going to marry a young man of 24. I only like to see him every other night so I can have all my other time to myself, but he insists on seeing me every night, afternoon and evening and even in the morning. He doesn't like to dance, I love it. He insists on our going to live with his parents. I don't want to do it. I really don't want to be tied down and am so undecided I don't know what to do. Is this true love or not?

UNDECIDED

Answer: Decidedly not. If you were really in love with the young man, you wouldn't dread his visits. He couldn't come often enough to suit you. And you wouldn't think of marriage as tying you down. You would want to be tied down to your husband and home. All that is the matter with you that you are too young to marry.

2-Day Marketing Clinic Closes at University

Little Rock, Jan. 24 — (AP) — A two-day marketing clinic sponsored by the University of Arkansas agricultural extension service closes here today.

The clinic was designed to promote greater efficiency in the marketing of farm products through panel discussions by farmers, processors, wholesalers, retailers and agricultural experts. At a banquet meeting last night, Dr. Lewis Webster Jones, president of the University of Arkansas, said he hoped for "broad" price controls that would "serve the competitive price system rather than detailed controls on each specific agricultural product."

Dr. Jones indicated that he felt certain there soon would be controls will defeat the program of maximum production that farmers will be trying to achieve during the war emergency.

He said the American National Life Insurance Co. is the only one that pays out on a death claim within 30 days.

Washington, Jan. 24 — (AP) — Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, air force chief of staff, says he is sure Maj. Gen. Emmett (Rosie) O'Donnell, until recently in charge of bombing in Korea, did not say the atom bomb should be used on China.

Nevertheless, General Vandenberg yesterday made public by the air force "use care" when making public statements.

Meanwhile, the army said an order issued shortly after O'Donnell spoke to a news conference was intended to encourage officers to do more talking. Rep. Van Zandt (R-Pa.) told the house yesterday a "gee" order went out after O'Donnell.

Four Bad Girls Like Female Dead End Kids

What the "Dead End Kids" were for wayward boys, the "So Young, So Bad" teen-agers are for delinquent girls.

Four brilliant young actresses make their screen debuts as the "bad girls" in the new United Artists film, "So Young, So Bad," starting at the Saenger Theatre. Their names, which undoubtedly will be heard more often in the future, are: Anne Francis, Anne Jackson, Rosita Moreno and Enid Pulver.

They were selected for leading parts in the dramatic new picture about a Corrective Home for Girls after an intense search by Producers Edward J. and Harry Lee Danziger. Almost 300 young thespians were tested for the roles. The outcome was the casting of the Misses Francis, Jackson, Moreno and Pulver.

As Loretta, the beautiful blonde who "went wrong," Anne Francis turns in a remarkably moving performance. An actress and model since she was six years old, she practically grew up in radio, having appeared regularly on such programs as "Portia Faces Life," and "When a Girl Marries." When she was 11, Anne played Gertrude Lawrence's childhood self in the Broadway version of "Lady in the Dark."

Red-headed Anne Jackson plays the spunky, boyish Jackie in "So Young, So Bad." A scholarship student at New York's famed Neighborhood Playhouse, since graduation she has appeared with the Katherine Cornell and Eva Le Gallienne stage companies.

The role of the brooding, little "bad girl," Dolores, is taken by Rosita Moreno, whose performance already has won her a long-term contract with Metro-Goldwyn Mayer. Born in Puerto Rico, Rosita has, for several years, supplied the voice for such stars as Elizabeth Taylor and Margaret O'Brien in Spanish-language versions of American films.

The fourth "bad girl," timid, shy Jane, is portrayed beautifully by winsome-looking Enid Pulver, a graduate of the American Academy of Dramatic Art and a veteran of two seasons of summer stock.

not spoke binding officers to support administration policies in any public comments on military and foreign matters.

O'Donnell spoke to newsmen last week at March Air Base, Calif., upon his return from his post as chief of the Far East bomber command to head the 15th air force, part of the strategic air command. His remarks created a flurry of pro and con comment in Congress.

Lindsey Buys All Cars for State Police

Little Rock, Jan. 24 — (AP) — Sen. Lindsey yesterday told a Senate investigating committee he decides when new automobiles are to be purchased for the department.

He said the purchases are made on sealed bids. He said he believed the state saved $125 per car on his buying. The committee, headed by Sen. Grover Carnes of Stuttgart, is making an investigation of the purchases generally.

Rep. Oliver Williams of Gray county, a committee member, asked if it isn't the human nature for you to buy automobiles from friends of the state administration.

Lindsey agreed the volunteers that many state police automobiles were bought from the Baker Motor company of Searcy. The firm is owned by Truman Baker, member of the state highway commission and political friend of Governor McMath.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Copyright, 1950

By Klieg Features Syndicate.

New York, Jan. 23 — I agree with President Truman that this war of his is going to cost too much that everybody will have to make sacrifices. I am quite willing to pay my share, whatever it may be. But Harry S. Truman is not paying his fair share and I resent his special privilege and demand that congress revoke the law granting him an outright grant of $50,000 a year in the guise of expense money, subject to neither accounting nor taxation. This is the most arrogant assertion of special privilege ever pulled off by a political gang, who have come to regard themselves not as agents and servants of the American people but as our rulers. It is corrupt practice.

Inasmuch as Mr. Truman hasn't got the decency to repudiate the grant and the corrupt intention of congress in passing the law, public opinion should compel congress to repeal it. The invitation to make a handsome gesture of honor lapsed when he failed to veto a bill that was rushed through the 81st congress just before his inauguration. This rush-net was an obvious trick because the constitution provides that the President's compensation "shall neither be increased nor diminished during the term for which he shall have been elected." The present term to which he was "elected" began on Jan. 20, 1945. This was his congress, the 76th, which had returned Truman's party to power after his noble campaign against the Republican 80th congress.

It can be strongly argued that the $50,000 grant never has been legal because Truman was "elected" for the term in which the rule was put through. That is to say, he was elected vice president with a constitutional proviso that he should become president in case of Roosevelt's death. The $50,000 rule was put through in the last hours of the term. The constitution provides another explicit forbiddance against this crooked device, wherein it says further that the President shall not receive any other emolument from the United States "during his term of office."

That word "other" shows that the founding fathers held that emolument and compensation meant the same thing. The title of the act which accomplished this vicious fraud with its corrosive and disruptive influence on the morals of the body of citizens says the President's "compensation," the term used to define his pay in the constitution shall include an expense allowance at the rate of $50,000 per annum. Therefore, it is seen that congress didn't even take the trouble to mask the graft. The $50,000 was included in the President's "compensation." To be sure, it was dishonestly described as an "expense allowance," but it is still compensation and therefore income by any honest interpretation of the fateful sixteenth amendment, which wiped out the old relationship between the American people and the federal government. It made the people subject slaves of congress whose entire income "from whatever source derived" belonged by right

Bobcat Teams Drop Pair at DeQueen

Four Hope teams hit the hard courts last night and the best they could do was split.

The Junior and Senior boys four-maned to DeQueen and were soundly whipped. Buddy Smith looped in 31 points to lead the Leopards to an easy 45 to 34 decision.

The Bobkittens made more of the scrap of it but faded in the final half by a 29 to 20 score. At one time the Hope youngsters led 14 to 4 but DeQueen evened the count by the half and went on to victory.

Both DeQueen fives were practically one-man teams but the Hope boys couldn't hold them. Smith looped 31 for the Senior Leopards while Ferguson tallied 21 points for the Juniors.

Down at Spring Hill last night Hope fared somewhat better. The Senior girls scored a 35 to 32 win largely on the 19 points tallied by Mitchell.

The B boys were not to be denied either although an overtime was required when the same ended 30-21. The Hope boys pushed in 5 points in the extra stanza while the Spring Hill "B" boys could only tally 3. Baber was high point with 10.

and by law to the government.

Not many citizens, and few of the senators and congressmen, then understood the terrible meaning of the lack of any limitation on the power of congress to take the income of the people. Had the amendment limited that grasping power to 20 per cent or 50 per cent the people still would have been masters of their government. But when the amendment went through with the approval of a dumb, selfish electorate whose only thought was to sock the rich, congress became a despotic body.

I have on my desk a letter from a wretched woman who had been visiting her husband in a federal prison. He is doing a year and a day for an income tax "fraud." You may say that it serves the fellow right. But what do you say about Harry Truman's privilege of immunity from reporting or accounting to an income of $50,000 a year ostensibly for expenses incidental to his office? We know that these expenses are thoroughly provided for in other funds. We know that the Trumans are typical non-spending, mid-western hicks. They wouldn't know how to throw a party even if they were of a mind to take the rubber off the roll. These facts we do know. But do the people also know that the same law that put over this graft also provided $1,375,140 for the expenses of the White House office, and for "travel and official entertainment expenses to be accounted for solely on his certificate?" Do they know that he got a $25,000 raise in pay and that he gets another "expense allowance" of $40,000?

"Certificates" means his mock statement, without oath. You are subject to the penalties for perjury.

Complicated, isn't it? You wouldn't suspect that they planned it that way to confuse us, would you?

This woman writes that her husband was denied bail during his appeal and was sent away for a year and a day without an hour to put his business affairs in order. He has been in prison several months already. He probably will have served his entire minimum sentence and be eligible for parole before his wife can manage to get together typewritten records of the testimony had other data needed for the appeal.

That can happen to anyone by means of clever, vindictive political enforcement of the Internal Revenue act. Remember that one of the great eastern smear-bunds at a rally a few years ago was admonished to invoke the penal provisions of the income tax laws to "get isolationists."

Meanwhile, as this woman bitterly points out, the traitor Judy Coplin, whose treachery was frankly acknowledged by the court of appeals, and Alger Hiss, whose treason was constructively implied in his conviction for perjury, go free on bail. This income-tax prisoner can never be repaid the months he will have spent in prison nor fully compensated for his mental anguish and his wife's even though he should be vindicated on appeal and congress should pass an appropriation of money to indemnify him. The duty of citizens to pay taxes has more and more been turned into a menace to his liberty and honor. Not one in a thousand can understand the tangled language. Professional experts make mistakes, and honest errors are crimes.

President Truman is said to be a truly representative common man, the veritable George Swallow. American, come to glory in the White House, I believe he is. But the trouble is that the common man, George Swallow, American, is just plain, not ideal. A president should be an ideal American. Swallow probably would yield to a social reformer, and risk in the process

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, Jan. 24 — (AP) — The only solemn looking guy observed at the baseball writers' dinner for Tommy Henrich the other night was a minor league official who had just heard the news about the Southeastern and Alabama State leagues folding up. "There'll be more before April," he observed. Right now they're hanging on trying to salvage something for the players they have. There's no provision for suspension now, as there was in the last war, so when a league quits the players become free agents. If they can hold on a while and sell some players they can at least pick up a few hundred bucks. Obviously was talking about the real small circuits, where a few hundred $$$ can be important money, but even can own his minor league has been hit by military inductions. "Not many from any one club yet, but every day a few names come into the league office," he sighed.

Entirely Sane
Just after the NCAA voted the sanity code out of existence, the University of Dayton basketball team was playing a home game and members of the football squad were, as usual, working as ushers. Bernie Otten, Monogram Club president, toured the arena to see that the lads were at their stations. When Otten came to Jimmy Currin, big sophomore end, Jimmy told him: "You know, I'm doing this for gratis tonight. The sanity code has been thrown out the window, so I'm just working out of the kindness of my heart." P. S.: Currin still has a kind heart and still is ushering.

Shorts And Shells
Talk among the college football coaches at their recent gathering was that Paul Brown likely wouldn't take the Ohio State or Southern California coaching jobs, if asked. Their idea was that Mickey McBride, a determined fellow, wouldn't give up a valuable "property" in which he had invested $1,000 a month for two years while Brown was in the navy. Tommy Shena, one of the nice guys allied with house racing, has taken over as editor-publisher of "The Horseman's Journal." Frank Scott, former road secretary of the Yankees, has gone into the business of handling non-baseball business affairs for ball players. University High School of Columbia, Mo., which has been compiling a fine basketball record, has a player named Coy again. Must be tough on headline writers.

Cleaning The Cuff
The Fort Wayne Pistons will honor Curly Armstrong, a home-town boy who has been a big wheel in basketball, with a "night" on Feb. 7. Novelty of this is that the Pistons play the Minneapolis Lakers then in a game which would be a sellout without any extra doings. Cliff Hagen, whose first varsity appearance has been eagerly awaited by Kentucky basketball fans, becomes eligible Friday but may be held out this season to give him three full years of play. Gak Query from a country correspondent: "Is there anything to the rumor that Vic Jennings will be named player-coach of Ohio State?" That's almost kidding on the square.

Council Wants to Stockpile Surplus Cotton

Biloxi, Miss., Jan. 24 — (AP) — The National Cotton council wants the government to stockpile surplus cotton.

A resolution to that effect was adopted yesterday after conflicting views of the proposal were aired.

The gist of the proposal was for the government to buy for a cotton stockpile any surplus left over from the projected 16,000,000 crop farmers hope to produce in 1951.

The resolution provided that this would be done on order of the secretary of agriculture to the Commodity Credit Corp. The CCC, the resolution said, would buy the excess cotton — if any — on the open competitive market at the market price.

After the resolution was read, Memphis, Tenn., cotton merchant Caffey Robertson called for a discussion and told the delegates:

"This proposition seems inconsistent with the meeting thus far. We've heard talks about preserving our free enterprise and about government intervention, but this seems to be inviting more intervention. We should think a long time before asking the government to enter the open market and compete with cotton buyers."

Dr. C. R. Sayre, Scott, Miss., director of the Delta and Pine Lands plantation, commented, "I think a study of this resolution would show that freedom of market is insured. I must point out that cotton growers accepted the goal of 16,000,000 bales in a time when the cost of production is highest in history. I feel, unequivocally, that this type of cushion is a requisite for this increased production asked during the coming year."

Walter Randolph, Montgomery, Ala., said, "The government is stockpiling a great many products. Certainly an adequate supply of cotton is essential."

"We'll get production if we can assure the man who puts his seed in the ground that he can sell a big crop without jeopardizing the price," Randolph added.

Says Drafting Youths Means Security

Washington, Jan. 24 — (AP) — Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg said today the administration's plan to draft 18-year-olds would assure the nation its greatest long-term security at the lowest cost in men and money.

The defense department's top manpower official told the house armed services committee the plan provides for both a swift expansion of the armed forces and a ready reserve supply of trained military manpower.

Under the universal military service and training (UMST) plan most 18-year-olds would be drafted for military training and then go into active military service. The draft period would be extended from the present 21 to 27 months.

In the senate, an armed services subcommittee resumes its public hearings on the measure today after a one-day recess. Representatives of scientific denial, engineering and education groups were scheduled to testify.

Senator Hank (D-Wyo.), a member of the preparedness subcommittee, proposed meanwhile that Secretary of Defense Marshall and the joint chief of staff carry their plea for UMST, beginning at 18 years, to the people.

Hunt told a reporter he believes the Pentagon has failed to convince a majority of the people the proposed lowering of the draft age and extension of draft service are necessary. He said they made a "good presentation" to the subcommittee.

General Marshall and the chiefs of staff would be wise to make a joint coast-to-coast broadcast to justify their position, Hunt said, adding:

"I plan to propose such a step to General Marshall. Senate and house members, he said, are getting heavy mail attacking the proposal to draft 18 year olds."

"Mostly they tell us they don't want us to draft the 18 year olds," Hunt said, but they don't say who should be taken in their place — they don't mention the defense department's arguments that husbands, fathers and veterans must be drafted if the 18 year olds are not."

Some members of the house armed services committee balked during testimony by Marshall yesterday at the idea of including a long-range universal military training plan in legislation extending the draft period.

4-F Athletes Not Safe From Draft

By JOHN CHANDLER

Associate dPress Sports Writer

Professional and amateur athletes got implicit notice today from Defense Secretary George Marshall that 4-F's probably will find themselves drafted in the present emergency if the necessity demands.

If inducted, Marshall said, the men could be used in non-combat duty, thus relieving more of the physically fit for the fighting front.

The question arose at a session of the house armed services committee in Washington yesterday when it was recalled that many athletes who failed to pass selective service physical examinations were deferred in the last war.

A new bill proposing to draft 18-year-olds and establishing a universal military service and training system now is under discussion.

Although it was not specified, Pentagon officials later made it plain that if it was decided to draft the 4-F's, not only athletes but men from all walks of life would be affected.

Officials of major league baseball and football immediately gave full support to the proposal, many of them pointing out that the athletes themselves would prefer such service.

Actually, unless the international situation requires drastic changes in mobilization requirements, such sports as major league baseball and football will feel little effect under present regulations.

The present draft applies only to men from 18 through 25 years of age, and exempts veterans of World War I and married men with dependants. Rosters of most of the professional clubs are stocked with players who saw service in the last war, are 26 or over, or are married.

At the pentagon it was said officials have been talking about the 4-F's for several weeks. The selective service boards are nearing the bottom of the barrel filling quotas with those meeting present physical requirements.

Erv Palica, 23, Brooklyn Dodgers pitcher who failed to pass his physical last November, passed a new examination yesterday. He suffered high blood pressure, but now is expected to be inducted within three weeks.

Rep. Auglin of Eureka Springs Won't Resign

Little Rock, Jan. 23 — (AP) — State Rep. Melvin D. Auglin declared today "I have no intention of resigning."

Commenting on a resolution adopted at a meeting of about 200 Eureka Springs residents last night asking that he resign, the navy veteran of 22 years service said:

"A good sailor never gives up the ship. I've faced everything from an irate wife to the California divorce courts to the Japs in Guadalcanal and this is not as bad as either of them."

"I didn't get but 110 votes out of Eureka Springs anyway and they tell me only 200 people signed the petition, so I didn't lose many supporters."

The Eureka Springs meeting was prompted by Anglin's bill to abolish that community as a Carroll county seat. The county now has two seats, Eureka Springs and Berryville. Anglin is from Berryville.

Anglin, a chief petty officer in the inactive navy reserve, said recent orders recalling him to active duty were a bigger blow to him than was the news of the Eureka Springs meeting. He has been deferred for the legislative session.

I doubt very seriously if the Eureka Springs meeting represents the true feeling of the community, Anglin said.

There are more than 41,650 post offices in the United States and its possessions.

Bishop Says Guns Alone Can't End War

HOPE, Jan. 24 — (AP) — An Episcopalian religious leader said today that guns alone are living in times of peace, but that the world's people must turn to God to end the war.

The Rt. Rev. R. Bland, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Arkansas, Christianity, said in a sermon at the annual convention of the diocese here, in Marion community.

Speaking from the pulpit of Christ church in downtown Little Rock, Bishop said:

"The war is between Christ and Satan, and any other subversive force which would grind down the more abundant life, which is the life of the heart and the life of the mind and every one must be in on it."

There is a roll of drums and a band of banners and the tread of marching feet in it," he said, "and there is no place for the specter of war."

Bishop Mitchell described communism as the most violent type of Satanism, which has yet appeared in the world, and it is erupting on the surface with such force that it cannot be temporized with."

He said he prayed for the Congress of clergy and lay delegates to become more militant.

He said the bishop, who became discontented and lost his faith in the Christian church, but he said he had found a new faith in the Christian church.

He suggested a cure for the ill of the world is acceptance of the Christian faith, which men know and accept as the sovereignty of God, and the world will find its peace and peace."

According to Episcopal statistics, the number of communicants in the diocese last year over 1949, with a total of 418,000 — the highest since 1929.

The total number of communicants in the diocese since 1929, when the number was 370,000, an increase of 48,000 over 1949.

Establishment of missions at Bogalusa, La., and Mountain Home, Tenn., the diocese met its financial obligations last year with a 10 per cent increase in missionary work.

Bishop Mitchell, who also is rector of Savanah, Episcopal church in Tennessee, devoted a portion of his address to an appeal for a campaign to raise $50,000 for a building and endowment fund for Savanah and an Episcopal church school, All-Saints in Little Rock.

Schools are owned jointly by the diocese of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee, and the bishop said he hoped to approve the plan for a new school.

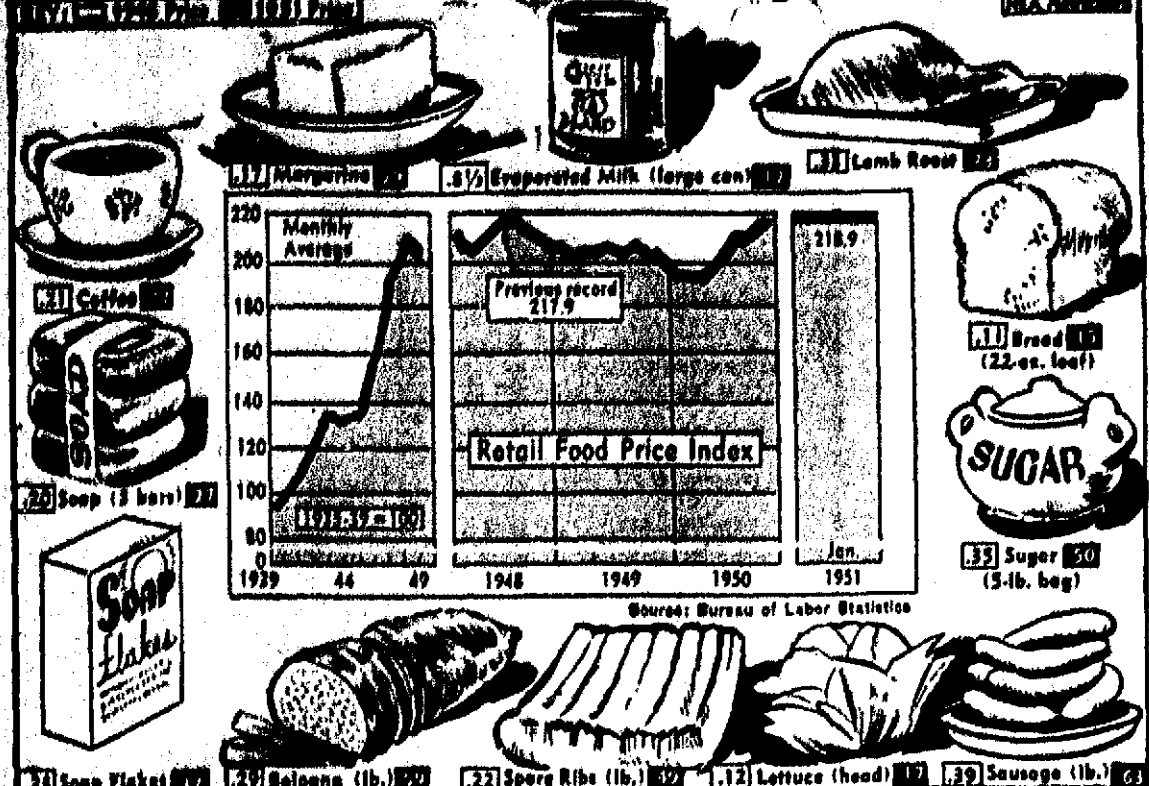

Arkansas diocese also was expected to receive contributions from the diocese of Tennessee.

Bishop Mitchell said he had been asked to accept the position of rector of a church in New York, but he had declined the offer.

He said he would be taken to the hospital for a check-up on his health, but he would probably return to his duties in a few days.

Truman Orders Speed Up in Freeze Plan

Washington, Jan. 23 — (AP) — A stopped-up government program to combat inflation was drawing new orders today, awaiting elimination of several more or less technical obstacles to a freeze on prices and wages.

President Truman moved meanwhile in an effort to insure that the growing demands of the defense program will not siphon off critical materials to such an extent as to endanger the nation's economic growth.

He named William S. Paley, board chairman of the Columbia Broadcasting system, and four other men to make a study of long-term effects on "our essential needs for military security, civilian welfare and the continued economic growth of the United States."

When the projected freeze on prices and wages and other anti-inflation moves would come hinged in large part on these still-to-be-developed plans.

1. Senate confirmation of Eric Johnston as head of the economic stabilization agency (ESA) to run the program.

2. An executive order from Mr. Truman widely expected to give Johnston vastly expanded authority for the ESA over the nation's economy.

Johnston, on leave of absence as head of the Motion Picture Association of America, yesterday received 9 to 0 approval of the senate banking committee to be economic stabilizer. Senate confirmation, possibly today, was regarded as certain.

Before the banking committee the value of Episcopal church property in Arkansas had been greatly increased by new buildings and improvements.

All and all, he concluded, the diocese had an outstanding year in 1950.

"Oh, May, May, my darling. I thought I'd lost you!"

His voice was a moan but it rang with elation, thanksgiving, devotion. "Is Judy all right?"

May's pinched face beamed up at him, alive with love and salvation. "In the little restaurant across the street. We've been sitting there watching for you for—forever."

They hadn't moved. Paul clung to the seatlike haven of her warm, pulsing body. Then he remembered that in addition to the joy of reunion there was more good news—the Dolphin was waiting.

A DIM bulb illuminated the sign: "CAPTAIN CROSS—Capt. H. Cross DEPT SEA FISHING PARTIES." Paul, holding Judy's hand, looked at the sign from across the dark street.

The sound of water lapping against the shore was music. He looked back. May smiled happily at the watched time. She was a black beauty.

Changes Are Sought in Draft Law

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, Jan. 24 — (AP) — The defense department, to boost the size and quality of the armed forces, wants some changes made in the present draft law.

It prepared a bill which it asked congress to pass, carrying out those proposed changes. Before it does so, congress probably will alter the bill a bit. Committees are holding hearings on the bill now.

As it stands, the bill would not make any direct changes in the national guard or the reserve groups. Yet the National Guard association and the Reserve Officers association are concerned about the bill.

They have a suggested some changes in it so that it will more positively speak of the need to preserve the future strength of both groups. The main objection of the National Guard association is this:

At this moment, under the present law, a youth under 18 1/2 years of age, if he joins the guard, is free from the draft so long as he performs his guard duties satisfactorily.

The bill would wipe out this deferment for under-18 1/2-year-olds who join the guard. The guard association protests that this would tend to cut down its strength.

Why? The pool of youths under that age serve as a steady field for recruiting new guard members. Still, the armed forces say they now must draft youths reaching 18. The guard wants the exemption continued for youths joining up before they are 18 1/2. These youths, of course, would be liable for service if their guard units were called up.

Under present law a youth reaching 18 must register with his draft board but cannot be drafted until he's 10.

There may have been some feeling around the country, by people who didn't read the bill, that it might make direct changes in the guard or reserves. This is not so. One reader asks for a "clarifying" roundup of present draft rules on veterans and married and single men. Briefly stated, this is it.

Only youths between 19 and 26, under present law, can be drafted but not all those. Veterans are exempt. So are men with dependents. If drafting them meant hardship for the dependents.

Priests and ministers and theological students are exempt. So are conscientious objectors, at least from combat duty.

The draft of students can be postponed until they finish out their academic year and the draft of students in the upper half of their class can be deferred indefinitely.

Then comes the married man problem. A man who is married before being called before his draft board for classification, is placed in 3-A. Who says so? Selective service headquarters here.

But such a man, headquarters says, must be in a true marital situation. For example: A man who was living in Arizona but had a wife in New York and perhaps was not supporting her would not be considered married so far as deferment from the draft goes.

The name reader says he has heard of cases where married men have been drafted. Selective service headquarters can't answer that one except to point out (1) the situation explained in the paragraph who married after the board places him in 1-A can be drafted.

There are roughly two kinds of reserve groups for men who have left the armed services: The organized reserves, who drill regularly and go to camp, and the volunteer reserves, those who may drill a little or not at all or may confine themselves to military study courses.

The law says that anyone who joined the organized reserves before the law was passed June 24, 1948 can't be drafted. Selective service headquarters says about reserves:

Enlisted men in the volunteers can be drafted but officers in the organized or volunteer reserves are not being drafted.

Nevertheless, the armed forces have been calling members of the organized reserves back to duty. The purpose of the reserves is to have trained men in readiness for a return to active duty. And some volunteer reservists have been recalled, although mostly only specialized people.

Michigan appeared in both the 1902 and 1948 Rose Bowl games and won both by the same score, 49-0.

Miss Dorothy Yancey of Little Rock was the week-end guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Yancey.

Sending Troops to Europe Gets Support

Washington, Jan. 24 — (AP) — The administration can count on the senate foreign relations and armed services committees to approve a resolution indorsing the dispatch of American troops to Europe.

A shot check by the Associated Press of 21 of the 28 members of the two committees showed that as of today 14 favors such a move and not one publicly opposes it.

A favorable recommendation by the two committees would carry heavy weight with the senate itself.

However, there was a sharp but inconclusive difference of opinion among the 21 committee members reached on whether congress should put a ceiling on the number of ground forces that may be dispatched under the North Atlantic treaty.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), who favors limiting the number of divisions involved, has said he will carry that issue to the senate floor. Senator Connally (D-Tex.) told reporters that if any such limitation were voted it would discourage Europe and encourage Stalin to strike before there is enough manpower over there.

Connally said he will call together this week the foreign relations and the armed services committees to look over a resolution assigned to them yesterday by unanimous agreement of the senate. Connally is foreign relations chairman.

The resolution, sponsored by Republican Floor Leader Wherry of Nebraska, was aimed at barring any commitment of troops to Europe by President Truman until congress passes on the issue. Mr. Truman says he has authority to act regardless of congress' action.

With Wherry agreeing, the senate sent the resolution to the two committees without passing on the question involved.

Connally is expected to supplant it with an affirmative resolution designed to put the senate on record as favoring the dispatch of U. S. armed forces to bolster Europe's defenses against possible Communist attack.

On the CBS "Capitol Classroom" radio program last night, Wherry declared Soviet Russia's war potential could and should be met with a ring of air bases from which the United States could "bomb Russia to her knees" if necessary. He opposed sending large U. S. land armies to Europe, saying air bases could be protected by troops of Allied nations. He said senate action sending his resolution to committee was not a defeat for him, but achieved one of his purposes — getting legislative consideration of the resident's right to send troops abroad.

Coming to Sheephead Bay in the subway they had taken the precaution of carrying Judy had been with Paul who had kept his face concealed behind a newspaper. May had hidden in another

They went through the arch and down the deck to the boat. A light shone through the curtains of the cabin window. As they drew nearer she saw the black silhouette of a man detach itself from the shadows of the deck and vault the rail. The man stood, hands on hips, waiting for them.

"Captain Cross?" Paul called softly.

The man remained silent until they were closer. "We ain't taking out no parties tonight." The voice was deep and gruff.

"That's not what your brother Royce said."

"You got a friend?" It was a challenge.

Paul gestured toward Judy and May. "I have two friends."

"I mean a particular friend."

"I guess you mean Jo-Jo."

"Get on board," he moved aside to let them on.

"Are we going for a boat ride?" Judy exclaimed happily.

Paul picked her up and swung her over the rail. "You bet we are, honey."

CAPTAIN CROSS clambered aboard after them. "Go in the cabin," he ordered.

The door to the cabin was closed. Paul turned the knob and pulled the door open. Light streamed out across the deck. May was right behind Paul with Judy.

He saw him stiffen with surprise. Her eyes flew to the open doorway.

A few steps led down to the small cabin. There was a rumpus on each side and beyond the one on the right was a desk. Two men were standing in the narrow space between the bunks.

They were staring up at Paul.
